

Project Description

The educational documentary will begin with a picture of the front cover of the book, Leading Your Marriage into the Promised Land. Dr. Campbell will begin by explaining the background information that led to writing of the book. Next, he will discuss the leadership principles that he used to rebuild his marriage. During that discussion, he will provide two activities for the viewers to complete. He will provide an activity that reduces conflict in the marriage and another activity that enhances communication in the marriage. In the next phase, Dr. Campbell will lead viewers in completing a shared vision activity. In the final phase, he will outline the entire process for Leading Your Marriage into the Promised Land, which he used to rebuild his marriage.

I am the best person to produce and host this film because I am the person who had the traumatic experience. My wife and I faced a marital challenge that could have led to divorce.

Can you imagine how devastating that was for me? I had met my wife on the Internet in 1998 and decided to relocate to the Cherry Hill, New Jersey area to begin a new life with the love of my life. Then six years later, my wife told me the traumatic news. It is a good thing that I pursued my doctoral degree in Educational Leadership instead of Biblical Studies. That is when I learned the leadership skills necessary to rebuild my marriage and therefore led my marriage into the "Promised Land".

There are other factors to consider. What about other men who are in a similar situation? What about the men who are like me and did not have a father at home? Or the men who never had their father to sit them down and teach them how to be the leader of the family. What about the men who are blindly in love and have not considered building their relationship before they get married? Well, I am going to help them by sharing the Leading Your Marriage into the Promised Land process that will help them to build and rebuild their marriage.
